

ANALYST MEET

On 3rd December 2022, the Equity Research Cell of Symbiosis School of Banking and Finance organised the Analyst Meet. There were 5 guests who joined us for the session. Our Director, Dr Neha Parashar, welcomed the guests and then proceeded with the session. The analysts discussed in detail about topics such as the global market and investment sentiments. The changes taking place in the global market were discussed, as the dynamic nature of the market since it contains all the primary and secondary markets and how the worldwide market should be tackled accordingly. The analysts talked about the investor sentiments, which affect the activity and price movement in the financial market.

The guests also spoke about the keys of investing into the market such as discipline, patience and thorough research. The analysts went on to share their insights on the trading strategies relating to futures and options and the practical aspects of the same. The guests shed light on the scope and importance of the emerging landscape of Fintech, where opportunities are impossible to ignore, especially in emerging markets. The rise in technology and the rapid advancements have only increased the scope of Fintech manifold. It was a very insightful session by professionals who are well versed in the internal industry trends and working.

We look forward to more such sessions where we get to know things from the people in the industry themselves.
